Faculty FAQs for Remote Start to Spring Semester

As stated in the December 31 Niner Notice, it has become necessary for the University to adjust plans for the start of the spring semester due to COVID-19 cases continuing to climb at record levels, and the more transmissible omicron variant becoming increasingly more prevalent. Classes will begin as scheduled on Monday, Jan. 10, but all undergraduate and graduate classes will be delivered virtually until Monday, Jan. 24. These FAQs provide guidance during this period.

Resources for Moving Classes to Remote Instruction

Campus Instructional Continuity Resources for Faculty:
- Canvas: Canvas support is available 24/7
- Zoom: How-to resources can be found in the Teaching with Zoom FAQs
- OneIT Service Desk: https://help.charlotte.edu/

CTL Instructional Continuity Resources:
- CTL Teaching Guide: Designing for Flexible Teaching
- CTL workshops:
  - Self-Paced Starting with a Fresh Canvas
  - Self-Paced Teaching with Zoom
  - Full workshop calendar
- Peer Mentors: Faculty from most colleges have volunteered to serve as peer mentors to assist with issues related to the pivot to remote teaching. Find someone from your college on the College-Based Faculty Mentors list.

Belk College, Atkins Library Partner to Tell College’s Rich History

Memories of eleven Belk College of Business emeritus and retired faculty are now archived permanently through a new series of multimedia living history videos, a pilot project created in partnership between the Belk College and the J. Murrey Atkins Library. The videos are available through Goldmine, the online repository for the Atkins Library's Special Collections and University Archives. Participants represent more than 386 years of combined service to UNC Charlotte and include five Bank of America Teaching Excellence honorees or finalists.

Student Photos To Be Added to Canvas As Part of Know Me Project

Beginning January 4, 2022, student ID photos will be visible on Canvas profiles. This will aid instructors and classmates to make better connections. In addition to student profile pages, student photos also will be visible to instructors in their class roster under the People tab in Canvas. Learn more.

Gradescope Workshops
In Fall 2021, more than 100 UNC Charlotte instructors and TAs used Gradescope to deliver and grade their exams/assignments, save time grading, and provide consistent and targeted feedback to students. An online workshop will show how to get started with Gradescope. In the workshop, you will learn how to:

- Set up and deliver paper-based (handwritten) or online assessments
- Save time grading individually or with TAs
- Use AI-assisted grading and answer grouping
- Maintain consistency with grading using Gradescope's dynamic rubrics
- Analyze question- and rubric-level statistics and use tags to measure student learning
- Use Gradescope via Canvas LTI

Instructors are welcome to invite their TAs and grading staff. A recording of the session will be available afterwards to those who register.

- Tuesday, January 4, 1:00 - 2:00 PM (Register)
- Thursday, January 6, 10:00 - 11:00 AM (Register)
