UNC Charlotte Academic Procedure: Academic Department/School: Establishment, Name Change, or Relocation

I. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This procedure provides the criteria and procedures necessary for establishing, renaming, or relocating an academic department or school at UNC Charlotte. The establishment, renaming, or relocation of academic departments or schools is approved at the campus level.

II. PROCEDURE STATEMENT

Establishment of an Academic Department or School

Academic Department: An academic department is the basic organizational unit of the university that is designed to carry out the institutional mission of instruction, research, and community engagement within a single discipline or a focused group of disciplines. New departments may be established out of existing departments, from a combination of departments, from the reconfiguration of existing programs into single units, or to meet a need of the university for developing a program not presently being offered.

Proposals for the establishment of a new academic department must present evidence of student demand for enrollment and the need for an identifiable disciplinary home to support research or instruction. In general, proposed academic departments should have at least ten (10) full-time faculty members and should expect to offer one or more degree programs. In the formation of a new academic department, consideration will be given to the availability of resources needed and the impact of the new academic department on existing academic departments.

Academic School: An academic school is an academic unit within an existing college that may be composed of one or more academic departments organized around a specific disciplinary focus. A school is expected to support programs at both the graduate and undergraduate levels and to have a separate discipline-specific accreditation. In evaluating proposals for the formation of a school, consideration will be given to the size and scope of the research program, the complexity of the programs offered within the proposed school, the demand for enrollment, the need and availability of resources to support the school, and the impact of the school on other academic units.

The Chancellor has the final authority to establish an academic department that does not involve a naming in recognition of an individual or organization; the Board of Trustees has the final authority to establish a school. All naming activities in recognition of an individual or organization are subject to the requirements of **University Policy 602.9, Naming Opportunities**.

Name Change or Relocation of an Academic Department or School

Proposals to change the name of an academic department or school or to relocate an academic department or school are considered at the campus level through the Provost and Chancellor in consultation with the Faculty Council. Proposals are expected to articulate an academic disciplinary and/or administrative need for the change. The Chancellor has the final authority to change the name of or relocate an academic department that does not involve a naming in recognition of an individual or organization; the Board of Trustees has the final authority to change the name of or relocate a school. All naming activities in recognition of an individual or organization are subject to the requirements of University Policy 602.9, Naming Opportunities.

Procedures

All requests to establish, rename, or relocate an academic department or school should follow the procedures below:

1. The Dean of the applicable college sends a proposal (including the justifications/articulations above) to the Provost. If the proposal includes a suggested new or revised name of a department/school, the proposal should include several name options for consideration.
2. The Provost may, but is not required to, seek outside review of the proposed establishment or name change of an academic department or school.
3. The Provost consults with the Chancellor about the request.
4. The Provost writes the Faculty President requesting a consultation with the Faculty Executive Committee (if confidential) or the Faculty Executive Committee and Faculty Council.
5. Once the Provost has consulted with the applicable faculty group, the Provost will notify the Chancellor that the consultation is complete.
  - If an initial naming or name change request involves a school or the naming of an academic department for any elected public official or any official of the State, the UNC System, or of the University while they are currently serving in their official capacity, the Chancellor places a request on the Board of Trustees agenda for consideration and approval.
  - In all other cases, the Provost either recommends the establishment/name change/relocation to the Chancellor or denies the request.
6. If the establishment/name change/relocation of the academic department or school is approved by the Chancellor (or the Board of Trustees, if required), the Provost will notify the Dean of the outcome. Following such notification:
  - The academic department/school initiates updates to campus systems, including:
    - Verifying changes to the upcoming Catalog edition(s) (undergraduate and/or graduate Catalogs);
    - Applying updates to relevant websites;
    - Updating Banner:
      - Sending an email to the Office of Institutional Effectiveness and Analytics to initiate Banner request (STVDEPT);

- Sending an email to the Budget Office to initiate HR/FINANCE module changes;
  - Contacting the Office of the Registrar to verify appropriate changes have been made.
7. The applicable college's Director of Communications will coordinate with University Communications and Academic Affairs to prepare an announcement to be made to campus, which will include the effective date of the establishment/name change/relocation.
